Arrangements for Manning's Funeral.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 26.—The funeral of Daniel Manning will take place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of his son. The remains will be viewed by personal friends of the deceased to-morrow from 9 to 12 a.m. The president and members of the cabinet will be the guests of Governor Hill. At St. Paul's church the regular Episcopal services for the dead will be read by the rector Rev. J. Livingstone Reese, D.D., officiating assisted by Episcopal clergymen of the city. The pall bearers are Manton Marble, Rufus W. Peckham, A. P. German, Charles J. Canda, Sidney Webster, Conrad N. Jordan, Erastus Corning, Bowers Cunkling, Slason W. Rosendale, Samuel J. Randall, John H. VanAntwerp and Percy H. Pratt. At the close of the services in the church the remains will be taken to a rural cemetery followed by members of the family and mourners in carriages.

New York, December 26.—President Cleveland, five members of his Cabinet and Private Secretary Lamont reached Jersey City at 9:30 p.m. on their way to Albany, where the party will attend the funeral of the late ex-Secretary of the Treasury, Manning.

A Generous Employer.

DETROIT, December 26.—A year ago General Alger gave a suit of clothes to 500 newsboys and sent coal or wood and flour to a hundred homes. This year he will repeat the gift, only on a larger scale. Newsboys will be selected and sent 100 at a time to certain designated clothing stores, where they will be carefully fitted out with coats and trousers of stout cloth, suits to wear, and with good shirts and shoes. The second part of Gen. Alger's benefit will be to supply 1000 families in Detroit a cord of wood or a ton of coal, together with a barrel of flour. In a list of families to be aided by this thoughtful and generous millionaire are brief notes of the causes which entitle them to the help extended.

The Pope's Invalid.

SAN REMO, December 26.—Dr. Mackenzie says he is greatly pleased with the improvement in the crown prince's condition. The new growth in the prince's throat is almost gone. There remains a slight inflammation on the left ventricular chord. The doctor says time alone can determine the exact nature of his disease. Dr. Mackenzie will start for England on Wednesday next. He thinks the prince might be benefited by the hot baths of Hamman Rhiza, fifty miles from Algiers, a health resort for consumption patients and persons affected with bronchial trouble. The climate in winter is like that of England, without the cold weather. The springs are curative of gout and rheumatism.

Gladstone's Holidays.

LONDON, December 26.—Mr. Gladstone left Hawarden to-day en route for the continent. Five thousand persons gave him an enthusiastic welcome on his arrival at Chester.

Large crowds gathered at all the places through which Gladstone passed, and he was received warmly everywhere.

LONDON, December 26.—Gladstone was greeted with mingled cheers and groans when he passed through London. While waiting for his train he was visited by Earl Spencer, Right Hon. Hugh C. Childers and other prominent men. The journey was made without stop until Sandwich was reached, where Gladstone addressed the crowd. He subsequently proceeded to the residence of Lord [illegible] where he ... night.

Killed by Cars.

WASHINGTON, December 26.—Charles House, foreman of the Richmond and Danville terminal company's yards in this city, lives in Alexandria. Yesterday he was walking on the railroad near Alexandria with his daughter. While standing between the north and south tracks absorbed in showing the child, the south-bound limited express struck him, knocking him on the tracks and crushed him so that his remains were hardly recognizable as those of a human body. The child was unhurt.

A Monstrous Sentence.

LONDON, December 26.—The Observer to-day denounces the sentence just imposed upon Daniel Doherty, the boasted Irish American, who shot and killed Graham, as monstrous. It declares that the judgment of Justice Stephens was biased by the opinion he often expressed that drunkenness increases instead of lessens the gravity of the offence.

The Pope and Ireland.

ROME, December 26.—It is stated that the pope has instructed Archbishop Walsh and other visiting Irish prelates to adopt a conciliatory attitude toward the government in Ireland.

The pope to-day received Queen Victoria's jubilee gift, which was presented by the Duke of Norfolk. The gift consists of a golden ewer and basin.

Darwin's Advice.

LONDON, December 26.—Michael Davitt, speaking at Stanbridge to-day, repeated his advice to farmers not to purchase land at the present time. By waiting, he said they would be able to secure land on the basis of nominal rent, or nearly to eighty per cent under the present figure.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

The Various Sunday Schools of the City

Hold their Annual Christmas Festivals.

An Occasion of Rejoicing for the Little Ones.

What was Done at the Different Churches.

Yesterday afternoon and evening many of the Sunday schools of the city observed their annual Christmas festivals. The exercises of the Methodist and Presbyterian schools occurred in the afternoon, the former beginning at 4 and the latter at 5 o'clock.

METHODIST.

The First Presbyterian church was completely filled with the scholars of the Sunday school, their parents and their friends when the exercises of the afternoon began. The church was appropriately decorated for the occasion. The decorations consisted of a shapely Christmas tree tastefully ornamented, a piece of scripture worked in evergreen suspended in front of the organ with a star in the center, and designs in evergreen upon the walls. The following was the programme presented:

Song, by the school "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Prayer.

Building of the cross.

Solo, H. E. Williams.

After the rendition of this programme Santa Claus in the person of Mr. John Lennox, made his appearance upon the scene, much to the delight of the children. After each scholar had been presented with a box of Whitman's candies the exercises of the afternoon were brought to a close. On Sunday afternoon the Christmas exercises of the school proper were held, consisting of recitations, solos and such other appropriate to the day. The most important feature of the afternoon was the distribution of the baskets which had been contributed among the members of the school at the Christmas tree. All the children were asked to collect as much money as they could from their friends, and the sum thus collected would be used in furnishing the Sunday school room in the new church. When they were opened on Sunday after the contents amounted to $142.76. Yesterday afternoon some fifteen more were collected which swelled this amount to over $150.

METHODIST.

Beyond a few evergreen designs back of the pulpit and upon the walls no attempt at elaborate decorations were made at the Methodist church. The house was packed to the gallery. The Sunday school also took a new departure with regard to their Christmas celebration. This year the school was requested to give something in the way of supplies, toys, etc., to the poor of the city. The result was gratifying and the space between the altar and the pulpit was completely filled with articles of various kinds. Among them were a [illegible] eight sacks of flour, three sacks of potatoes, and a large quantity of bread, canned goods, home chickens, turkeys, toys, books etc. In addition to this one ton of coal was given and $14.70 was received by the pastor, Rev. A. C. Peck, to purchase supplies. These contributions will be distributed to-day. Promptly at four o'clock the exercises began and were as follows:

[illegible]	[illegible]
Prayer	[illegible] Class Chorus
Recitation	[illegible] Class of girls
Carol	[illegible]
Reading	Miss P. [illegible]
Recitation	[illegible]
Recitation	Annie Knowlton
Duet	[illegible]
Recitation	[illegible]
Benediction	Rev. A. C. Peck

At the conclusion of these exercises each child was presented with a box of fine French mixed candy and an orange, and sixty-nine tuck Testaments were distributed among the members of the infant class.

After singing the long metre doxology the school were dismissed with the benediction.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The exercises at this church were held last evening, beginning at seven o'clock. The building was filled with the scholars of the Sunday school and their friends. Upon the stage several Christmas trees were tastefully arranged and lighted with wax tapers. They presented a very attractive appearance. The exercises of the evening consisted of the rendition of a Christmas cantata entitled "Among the Pines," taken from St. Nicholas. The characters in the cantata were entirely taken by children and it was presented in a very pleasing manner. The credit of the performance was due in a great measure to Mrs. L. B. Farrar, who devoted considerable time to drilling and training the children who took part. After the cantata the scholars of the school were invited into the church parlors where they were served with ice cream, cake, etc. A brief season of social intercourse brought the evening's exercise to a successful close.

CHRISTIAN.

The Christian church on Huerfano street was fairly packed last night with the children and teachers of the Sunday school, and members and friends of the church. A large number were obliged to remain standing throughout the evening. A handsome and neatly trimmed Christmas tree stood on the platform, and it was loaded with presents, which were distributed among the children. The programme included several musical selections, recitations, etc., and all present thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

The Philadelphia Times proposes to [illegible] Mr Blaine's influence in Pennsylvania by making Senator Don Cameron a [illegible] candidate The more [illegible] of Mr. Cameron's name is kept [illegible] the [illegible] which he claims as a [illegible] will receive.

The delay in the appointment of the house committees by Speaker Carlisle is ascribed to a desire on his part to effect a compromise with Mr. Randall with regard to the policy to be pursued by the democrats in congress on the question of tariff reduction. It is stated that these efforts at a compromise have failed, and that Mr. Randall is as obdurate as ever. The position in which the democratic congressmen now find themselves placed by the pronounced stand of the president, is well calculated to cause them some uneasiness and anxiety. Congressional proceedings for the next few weeks should be very interesting.

The great strike of the employees of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company will attract general attention, from the fact that it is a direct contest between the company and the Knights Labor, and the success or failure of the strike will be an important [illegible] the future of the order. From our dispatches this morning it would appear as if the company was [illegible] its own, and that the strike is growing weaker. Possibly [illegible] the influence and [illegible] of the knights [illegible] really [illegible] and it would not be at all surprising if the order [illegible] totally collapse [illegible]. It is to be hoped [illegible].

Governor Oglesby of Illinois has a [illegible] to be appointed to [illegible] of the [illegible] senatorship. He believes [illegible] with the question of [illegible] of Dakota as a state to the [illegible] displeasure of the members of the democratic party. Mr. Springer proposes to have the state [illegible] railway, to be known as North and South Dakota. The [illegible] will be largely republican. But [illegible] does not intend to admit two republican [illegible] without making an extensive addition to the number of democratic states. He proposes that Indian territory be [illegible] and four states be carved out of Texas. If this is done he thinks that the question of democratic supremacy would be settled for some time to come. The Chicago Tribune thus speaks of this proposition of Mr. Springer:

Mr Springer would do well to consider things a little nearer home than Indian territory, No Man's Land and Texas. The district he represents needs to be [illegible] a change of mind if not of heart. In the early days of his congressional career it was one of the strongholds of the party, and Springer was elected by decreasing majorities. But times have changed. His majority of [illegible] 8000 in 1884 was whittled down in 1886 by Major Cooley to the beggarly plurality of 970. Evidently his constituents think he needs localizing. In trying to expand himself into a national statesman he is diaphanous. If he must be punched in any other way he is likely to be laid away on a shelf. The margin in his case is so narrow that he would do well to reserve all his resources for expenditure in his own particular bailiwick, especially as nothing which he or any congress can do would have any influence with Texas or the "Nation." Texas is dead set against division, and Indian territory against loss of independence. The plot at most would be a barren rascality.

IN THE MOUNTAINS OF MEXICO, Dec. 8.—Leaving the cave with real regret that we could not devote more time to its exploration, nor room in our carriage to transport the relics of which it reserves so many that would be valuable to science, we took up our road [illegible] and had a long hard pull up a rugged mountain road for the horses, while we brought up the rear on foot on our way toward Durango. We had gone scarcely a league when we came upon a man and child sitting under the shade of a thatch supported by four poles, wearing straw hats out of a species of grass which grew so [illegible] abundantly that all they had to do was to [illegible] their persons from time to time to always have a supply of material. When the driver heard that we were to [illegible] in all [illegible] for this party a [illegible] of himself and said: "Surely the evil one must have got into [illegible] Americanos. They don't [illegible] their own minds ten [illegible]."

We had dinner an hour earlier than usual, and with the addition of some cactus pears, which are very good when ripe, if you are very careful about the thorns. Then we started, leaving the horses, tethered up to their knees in [illegible] grass. The cook remained behind, and the driver cast with us much against his will, for the Mexicans appear to have a great horror of [illegible] with ruins. We trudged along the [illegible] the [illegible] cruise, catching many rare and beautiful insects on the way until after nearly three hours' hard tramp we [illegible] an angle of a mountain [illegible] and ascended something like 500 or 600 feet, and turned again, and there in a beautiful valley, surrounded on four sides by hills and mountains, lay the remains of what must at one time have been quite an important city, as cities went in those days

What astonished me was that some of the houses had clearly been three stories high, and all were built of enormous blocks of hewn stone, there not scarcely anything but the walls were standing; no roofs or floors remained, which proved to me that wood also had been used in the construction, and that probably tiles or roofs had been covered with thatch. We counted the walls of twenty distinct houses, some of them have been large enough to have contained several families, besides which there were smaller confused heaps of stone in every direction. We looked in vain for any trace of a church or cross which could give us an idea of the era of this city, but there was nothing, but finally the little woman said:

"Edward, there is something over there," and we scrambled a hill to the east, at first not noticing that there was [illegible] ever had been stone steps, but afterward we found that there was a regular flight of stone steps leading to the brow of the hill, which was flattened off and had been paved with large slabs of stone, in some places covered with turf and grass, and in others tilted up so as to prove the existence of the paving. In the center was a round stone, [illegible] on the level of the rest, and on this we found some faint evidences of rude carving, but the top was smooth as if from the wear of time. There were no traces of anything else that would indicate what this was for, but to my mind it was no doubt [illegible] in the form a place of worship, and probably of sacrifice, [illegible] ancient [illegible] some indications, but we had neither means nor time. All we could do was to make sketches.

On the mountain to the westward were terraces [illegible] which the Mexican said were hollowed out [illegible], and he thinks that there was water [illegible], as near the spot in the mountain [illegible] the forest were those who grew a water [illegible], though to a very [illegible] degree. [illegible] supposed that [illegible] from some cause these terraces dried up, and then the people had to leave, [illegible] know," she continued, "[illegible] to live without water, and they [illegible] know how to dig wells [illegible] I [illegible] with her, as I [illegible] to the [illegible], where I found new specimens of [illegible], now nearly filled with [illegible] and the dust of centuries

They [illegible] upon their trip to [illegible] below the [illegible] of a [illegible] having been [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
